Weekly Duty

Today, I am on duty at Sudut pidato. My duty is only only to take care of the students during the Zohor prayers. I have no duty today for when the school period ends. Therefore my duty is as usual, to keep the moral students and female students who aren't able to pray to be well behaved and quiet during the zohor prayers for the muslim male students as the Sudut Pidato is quite near to the Boy's Suaru terbuka (Laman An Nur).

Classes

Today, I met up with my mentor. Last week, she asked me to see her today so we could start discussing on how to teach the students how to write their essays. She mentioned to focus on essays only for this week and next week so students can get used to writing essays. So for today's classes, my mentor suggested me to start with one of the essay topics in their module books about "Computers". She taught me the proper way of how to start the introduction, the body and the conclusion. She asked me to teach the students on planning the essay first, then in the next lesson, I could ask the students to start writing the whole essay. She told me to tell the students to complete their essays during the class hour so that students can get used to finishing their essay writing in the time given and not making it as a homework as they might have the possibility to search on the internet. This is to teach students to manage their time and know what to write so they can practice and be prepared for their upcoming exams.

Weekly School Assembly

An hour before the school ends, the school had the official school assembly at Dataran Perdana. It couldn't be done at the Dewan Seri Melawati as the SPM trial seaters are using the venue. This assembly is actually the school's last weekly assembly for this year. There was an award giving session and a short speech given by the school principal about children's discipline at school. It was a very quick session as the weather was not looking so well and it looked like it was about to rain. The assembly was cut 30 minutes short, the school principal allowed the students to leave 10 minutes early due to the rain. Later after that, I took a picture with the school principal as Today we wore green to show support for Palestine.

Introduction

Today, I had classes as usual with my 2 AlJazari and 2 AlKindi. I continued teaching them essays on the same topic which is "Computers". In tge previous class which was yesterday, I asked them to do a short essay plan on what they are going to write. For today's class, I asked them to write a full essay based on what they have planned. I asked them to complete writing the essay in class, this is to train them to finish writing during the time given so they won't bring it home as a homework and depend on the internet.

Relief Classes

Today, as usually I have no classes but I have only one relief class with 1 Khawarizmi. I gave them a wordsearch puzzle for them to do during my relief class so they have something to do and I will ask them to submit it to me once they're done. During my free time, I tried to update on my blog and do the lesson plan for next week.
